Congress of the United States.
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. EMOTT'S SPEECH.

On Mr. Macan's bill on the motion to adhere.

Mr. EMOTT said if any apology should be thought necessary for his rising at such a late hour, he hoped it would be found in the importance of the subject under discussion. It was not his intention to consume much of the time of the house and he should not have taken a part in the debate, but from the consideration that he thought he could present a few ideas which appeared to him material towards a correct decision, and which had not been noticed. Many gentlemen have talked so much of England and France, that they have almost forgotten that we are legislating for our own country. If we pass or reject the bill on your table, it should be to advance the interest of America; its bearing on either of the belligerent powers is a secondary & minor consideration.

In order that he might be the better understood, he said, he would commence by recalling the attention of the house to the bill with its provisions, and state the points wherein the two branches of congress differed.

The bill as it originally went from the house of representatives had four different provisions.

1. It contained a repeal of the non-intercourse law.
2. It interdicted British and French armed vessels from entering our harbors.
3. It interdicted the entrance into our waters of British and French merchant vessels, and so far was intended to give the export trade of the country to our own ships.
4. It prohibited the importation of British and French goods except in American registered vessels laden at the place where the goods were manufactured, the attempting to secure to our ships our import trade.

The three last provisions were limited to the end of the next session and in the mean time were placed under the control of the executive who on a revocation or modification of the edicts of Great Britain & France was at liberty to declare the prohibitions at an end.

As the bill comes from the senate the two last provisions and the limitation are struck out, and it now stands a naked unqualified repeal of the non-intercourse law, and a permanent interdiction of British and French armed vessels. We are now called upon to decide whether we will pass the act thus modified or destroy the hopes of the country by adhering to the part expunged by the senate.

The bill as it now stands is by no means unobjectionable, but after the consideration which I have given it I am prepared to vote for it. A limited or qualified interdiction of the armed vessels of G. Britain and France may be proper, and during the continuance of the war it is a measure of which perhaps they ought not to complain. A permanent regulation of this kind is however without precedent and will probably call for retaliation. If the system is pressed back on us, we shall certainly be the sufferers.

We have for many years had a naval force in the Mediterranean sea to protect our commerce against the Barbary powers, and we have now on our tables bills which I presume are entitled to be acted on for granting conveyance to our merchantmen, bound to Europe. If our armed ships are denied the rights of hospitality in European ports, if they cannot obtain an ounce of meal or a draught of water when they arrive in Europe, it is rather difficult to understand how they can make these voyages or remain on foreign stations. Such must be their situation if France and G. Britain, and the powers dependent on or connected with them adopt a retaliatory system.

What are the benefits to result from the provision?—As it respects France, her armed vessels are not frequently seen on this side the Atlantic, and therefore I presume is not particularly aimed at her. With respect to Great Britain we are to recollect, that she has, both to the north and the south of us, safe and convenient harbors in abundance, where her vessels may stop and rest, and be provided for. This regulation will not therefore prevent her ships from approaching our country or hovering on our coasts. We are therefore provoking a war of restriction and inhospitality from which we have little to gain and may possibly lose much.

But notwithstanding these objections, so strongly do I wish the repeal of the non-intercourse laws, and such I know are the sentiments and expectations of the country on this subject, that I am willing to take the pill unpalatable as it has been made.

But it has been urged that the bill has been stripped of every thing valuable and ought not in its present decrippled and deformed state to be countenanced. I must beg the attention of the house while I pass in review the highly prized provisions which are so pertinaciously adhered to. I shall be much disappointed if it does not appear that their value has been overrated.

In their most perfect form and without any impediments or countervailing regulations on the part of the European governments, the provisions which have been negatived by the senate, may confine the American import and export trade to American vessels.

That to a certain degree our own ship-owners and ship builders ought to be encouraged will not be denied. We not only by it, give employment to an useful set of men but the community at large are benefited. If we depend on foreigners to carry away our productions, we would not only give a monopoly to certain European nations, as for instance to the British during the present war, as their vessels only can reach our coast, but our sales would not be as profitable or as certain. Our merchants in our own vessels seek the best market and can therefore give the best prices. And the farmer or planter sinks in his sales but one profit and one freight.

This encouragement is already given in our protecting duties, and so effectual have they been under the fair conduct of our merchants that foreign ships seldom enter our ports. But this encouragement may be carried too far and it may well be doubted whether by driving foreigners absolutely out of market we are not prejudicing one set of our citizens for the exclusive advantage of another. Whether by absolutely prohibiting every thing like competition with our own ship owners and thus allowing them to make their own freights, we are not unduly sacrificing the agricultural to promote the shipping interest.

But is this the regulation necessary to protect or to foster our shipping interest.—As to French vessels it certainly is not required as no French merchant vessels are found in our seas. If it has any operation it must be on the British, and so it seems to be understood. We have no document before us from what we gather with certainty the exact amount of British tonnage employed in our trade, but we have such parts as will enable us to come pretty near the truth. It is stated that the whole foreign tonnage employed in our trade, is somewhere between forty and sixty thousand tons.

When it is understood that the British vessels which enter our waters are principally coasters coming from Nova Scotia with plaster of Paris, and other bulky articles, and that the same vessel arrives several times during the same year, and thus swells the list of tonnage, without adding to the number of ships, it is a fair and safe calculation that the actual amount of British shipping employed in our trade does not exceed and probably does not amount to 8000 tons. Thus then the French have no ships to be excluded, and the English but forty or fifty vessels of the smaller kind. This is indeed a small item in the amount. The addition of a few small craft will certainly be of no great advantage to our ship builders and our farmers, (I speak particularly of the country which I have the honor to represent) will be seen to suffer by the interdiction of these Nova Scotia coasters, either from the scarcity of plaster and the consequent advances on its price.

But it is said that want of employ elsewhere will greatly encrease the British shipping in our trade, that being wholly excluded from continental Europe by the French decrees, the tonnage formerly employed in the European trade, will be turned toward this country, and that therefore the interdiction is necessary for the protection, perhaps the existence, of our shipping interest. Is there any danger of this? Those who think so reason on the French decrees as many formerly reasoned about the embargo: they regard them in the abstract as being a complete barrier to the introduction of English goods on the continent and an actual inhibition of all intercourse with the British. In the same manner gentlemen believed that our embargo would prevent our productions finding their way to England, and keep British goods out of the country. But such was not the effect of our embargo, and such assuredly is not the practical effect of the French decrees, nor will it ever be. As soon as our people began themselves to feel the effects of the embargo by the pressure and the losses it occasioned, our productions found their way out and to Great Britain, and if during the continuance of the embargo there was a scarcity of English goods it was assuredly an artificial scarcity created by the dealers to enhance their prices. The trade between the two countries was kept up, though carried on in a different manner and by different men. Such too has been the effect of the French decrees, and according to the opinion of practical statesmen, such will hereafter be their operation. They may change the old channel, but the stream cannot be pent up; it must and will find its way out.

As the effect of the French decrees and the state of British commerce have such an intimate connection with this subject and have accordingly been strongly insisted on in the discussion of the bill, we are bound to look them fully in the face, and I will therefore proceed to view them a little more in detail.

In the first place I remark that the wants of the people on the continent must be satisfied and are at war with the regulations of the French emperor. In the quarter of the world as in this, the people have surplus productions which they have been in the practice of exchanging for the articles of other countries. The articles taken in exchange are actually or from habit necessities which the people cannot do without or do not wish to be deprived of. And if a vent cannot be found by the continental nations for their surplus productions, they become of no value and are lost to the owner. When we find commercial regulations thus at variance with the wishes, the interests and the wants of a people they will most assuredly be evaded unless enforced by the hand of omnipotence.

Again, the French decrees are enforced by fear and not from inclination. Does any one believe that in Austria or Prussia or Sweden or the Hanse towns, these regulations have been received with favor or have been adopted from any other motive than fear of the French emperor. When this is the case, when a government is compelled at the command of a powerful neighbor to adopt a system of commercial restriction which impoverishes the country and is counter to the feelings and habits of its subjects, if the commerce is not secretly permitted, much pains will not be taken to prevent it. As a proof of this we have only to turn our eyes on Holland, a country bordering on modern France & ruled under Napoleon by his brother. Yet in this very country a trade with England is carried on to such an extent, that we find the emperor not merely complaining of it, but threatening for that cause alone to annex Holland to his empire. If such is the fact in Holland, what must the case in other kindoms further removed from France and not ruled by any of the Bonaparte dynasty.

Alexandria Daily Gazette.

THURSDAY, APRIL 5.

To the Freeholders of Fairfax County.
FELLOW CITIZENS,

HAVING been announced through the medium of the Alexandria Gazette, by a "Freeholder of Fairfax," as a person willing to represent the county in the next general assembly of Virginia, it might seem as if it were incumbent on me to assent or dissent thereto in the same public manner. Never having authorised I had determined not to sanction the nomination, in hopes that some other person better qualified and more inclined to the office than myself would be brought forward; but from any information which I possess it does not appear that any other has been named.

As my name was announced without my consent, it would require no apology on my part to withdraw it, and I certainly should do so unambitious as I am, and ever have been of political honors, were I to consult my individual feelings and convenience, more than the pressing solicitations of a number of Freeholders, to whose opinions I feel bound to manifest the greatest deference: Not that I am unconscious that there are many gentlemen of the county better qualified than myself to perform the important duties proposed to be confided to me; but because I hold it to be the duty of every citizen freely to yield his time and best exertions to the service of his country whenever he may be called by it to do so. Under the influence of these motives alone I have determined to assent to the nomination of my name, as a candidate for your suffrage, and if the people of the county shall think proper to repose their confidence in me at the approaching election, it will be an event extremely grateful to my heart—and in return I can only promise to devote to their service, with zeal and fidelity, the full exertion of my talents, such as they are, to maintain the honor and liberty, the safety, peace and prosperity of our common country—in which are all my attachments, and on whose fate depend all my interests.

An accidental and present lameness, rendering it inconvenient to me to ride on horse back—Such of the Freeholders with whom I have not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance, will be good enough to excuse my not waiting upon them at their houses, which nothing but necessity could prevent my doing: and I beg leave to subscribe myself with sentiments of the highest respect and consideration their obedient humble servant.

RICHARD M. SCOTT.

Bush Hill, April 5, 1810.

On Monday arrived at Manchester, the brig Alonzo, captain Burges, from Malaga, with Gibraltar papers of January 7, Malaga papers to January 18, marine intelligence, and the following extracts of letters:

"MALAGA, Jan. 20.

"Among the lower classes of people the greatest enthusiasm continues to prevail, and great sacrifices will be made to prevent our being overrun. It will not be surprising should they rise in mass; and as the roads in general are bad, and of difficult access, the enemy will be materially annoyed. If great reinforcements arrive from France, in the long run we may be subjugated; but the French government will never find a friend in this country in the present generation."

"MALAGA, Jan. 22.

"The members who are to compose the Cortes of the nation have been chosen. In this province we have made a good selection. No person of title, nor any one holding a public office has been chosen."

P. S. We are just informed that General Luce has taken 800 Frenchmen of a corps who attempted to pass the Sierra Morena."

"MALAGA, Jan. 23.

"Two officers of the Volontaire frigate, arrived here last evening from Gibraltar, and mention, that they carried from Mahon French Deputies that had been to see Collingwood, and landed them on the of France, near Marseilles, in the time. That the object of their misalwas a perfect secret, but that it was gene-supposed they had carried proposals the south of France and part of Italy, to declare themselves independent, and so-they should be considered neutrals the English."

DOUBLE DEALINGS.

The contents of the following letter are of an extraordinary nature, that we hardly know what to think. If it is not true, the administration will certainly at once show it; otherwise we suppose an engality will be instituted by the representatives of the people. This is the first intimation we have had of an American minister at the court of King Joe. Nor do we recollect of any such nomination being submitted to the senate.

Freeman's Journal.

Extract of a letter from an American gentleman in Cadiz, dated 17th January, 1810.

"I have just seen Madrid dates to the first instant, and cannot avoid relating to you a curious fact mentioned in a letter under that date, from a person of respectability—"Yesterday, (the 30th December) the criminal court, appointed by the benevolent intruder, King Joseph, took cognizance of the cause of an Irish clergyman, who acts as Charge des Affaires of the United States in this capital, and who has been imprisoned upwards of two months by order of the usurper." Until now, it was not known here that the present administration was playing a double game in Spain, and that whilst they gave orders to Mr. Erving to follow the Supreme Central Junta in the character of their representative, they also had another agent near the court of the intruding monarch. The few Americans here have seen with deep regret this double game, and cannot help drawing a comparison between the legislative government of Spain and that of the usurper. The Junta treats Mr. Erving with every possible respect and attention, while King Joseph imprisons and ill treats the agent, representing near his person, the American government. Since this circumstance has transpired, I blush to meet my Spanish friends; however, I am glad to observe they discriminate between the act of a set of men who would wish to favor French usurpation and tyranny, to answer their private views, and the wishes of all true Americans who surely never can approve, they say, an attempt against the liberties of a great and independent nation."

Extract from the same person, dated 24th January.

"Since the defeat of the French in the passes of Sierra Morena, all is again in confusion in Madrid. We have just learned that King Joe, the barbarian, has ordered the beautiful custom-house, post-office, and other public buildings in Madrid, to be immediately demolished; by this time I suppose those elegant edifices no longer exist.
Joseph consulted his friends respecting the demolition of the magnificent new palace he inhabits; but this has been suspended for the present. Meanwhile his rapacity and that of his myrmidons is beyond conception; they rob and plunder the plate, jewels and other valuable effects of the churches, convents, and individuals, and such is their avidity for gold that they even scrape off the gilding of picture frames and columns, and burn every ray of tissue they meet with. This conduct of the French induces the Spaniards to believe their visitors are about quitting that capital. God grant they may, and the kingdom too, for as long as a Frenchman remains in Spain there will be no peace or happiness."

SPOTTED FEVER.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Petersham, to his friend in Boston, dated Petersham, March 19.

"The distress of this part of the country is beyond anything you can conceive. Seven men and women and one child are buried in three, this afternoon. Sixty are now sick. Doctor Holmes told me this day, that twenty physicians would not be too many for that town alone, and the disorder has made its appearance in Athol."

Some account of the SPOTTED FEVER, which has made its appearance, and now rages in Petersham, in the county of Worcester, and some other adjacent towns, particularly the town of Dana, Massachusetts.

The following are some of its characteristic marks as it has fallen under our observation. It begins with shifting pains in different parts of the body, most frequently in some of the limbs, often in some of the larger joints, as the knee, the hip, or the shoulder, shifting from place to place, and frequently to the head or stomach, and often from one to the other of those last mentioned parts, with a sense of universal uneasiness or restlessness.

These symptoms are accompanied with cold shiverings and other marks of fever, which are soon followed by a remarkable and general prostration of the strength, and a depraved action of the sensitive organs.
In some violent cases the sight is much impaired, and even totally, though temporarily lost.

The eyes appear sometimes dead or glassy; but at other times, especially during the progress of the disease, they appear red or suffused. The pupil is frequently more or less dilated; but sometimes contracted to almost a point; and sometimes these states alternate with each other. The tongue has been invariably covered with a whitish coat and moist.

The pulse is generally a little increased in frequency, remarkably intermittent, and between the intermissions unequal both in strength and quickness; but in some few mild cases it is very little altered.

There is generally great distress at the stomach, with nausea, and for the most part some vomiting.

Respiration is in all cases much disordered; but the labor seems to arise rather from the difficulty of inflating, than from any infraction of the lungs, as there is no cough.

Petechia, or livid blotches, or a red fiery eruption, sometimes in clusters and sometimes in large and distinct pustules, in most cases appear on the surface of most parts of the body, and sometimes they are general.
These pustules most commonly break, discharge a little thin watery fluid and dry up; but sometimes they mature, forming ulcers which may not heal till after recovering. But neither the spots nor the eruptions are inseparably connected with the disease. But when the eruptions do appear they are attended with much itching.

Consciousness, especially in adult males, sometimes remains to the last unimpaired.
But in females violent hysterical symptoms, with high delirium, have within a few hours supervened. And in young children a stupor sometimes comes on soon after the vomiting which announces the approach of the disease, and continues till death.

In regard to the prognostics in this disease, our observation enables us to state, that from those cases attended with pete-chia, few recover; whilst those accompanyed by an early eruption, more generally and more safely get through the disease.

The duration of the disease is too uncertain. Some have died within twelve hours, others within twenty four from the time of the attack; while a large proportion of others have had the violence of it broken within forty eight hours, when it runs into the form of a mild typhus of uncertain duration.

TUESDAY, April 3.

[CONCLUDED.]

[Taken for the Alexandria Gazette:]

The question on Mr. Bibb's motion for postponement was taken by ayes and noes and lost—Ayes 33—Noes 69.

The question was then taken on the first member of the resolution; but before the vote was declared, Mr. McKim rose and requested to change his vote, as he had voted, he said, contrary to his intention. Mr.
Randolph objected to the gentleman's altering his vote without the unanimous consent of the house. Several questions of order were raised and appeals taken, which kept the house to a late hour, when an adjournment took place without deciding any thing. The vote on the resolution was not declared.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4.

After considerable debate relative to the journals, which, on account of the various questions of order and appeals, it was next to impossible to have very correct: Mr.
Love rose and offered a resolution relative to the Bank of the United States. Mr.
Randolph stated that the house could not proceed to any business until the business of yesterday should be finished, "as the clerk was at this instant counting the yeas and nays on the question left last evening." The resolution of Mr. Love was laid on the table, and the house plunged back again into the embarrassment, out-of which they had been lifted yesterday, by the unprecedented adjournment.

At half past one the questions of order were decided, and the clerk proceeded to call the yeas and noes on the first member of Mr. Pinnock's resolution, as taken last evening. The vote stood, ayes 67, noes 24.

The yeas and noes on the second member were, Ayes 78—Noes 31. On the whole resolution the vote was Ayes 80—Noes 29. A committee of five was ordered; and Mr. Pitkin moved the following resolution: Resolved, that the committee to be appointed to inquire into the conduct of Gen. Wilkinson, be appointed by ballot, and that on the 5th day of April instant this house will proceed to the appointment.

The question was taken by ayes and noes and negatived. Ayes 52, noes 64.

The house then resumed the consideration of the resolution for adjourning Congress on the 23d inst. It was agreed to.
Adjourned.

We understand, that a letter from Gen.
Armstrong to the secretary of state, dated January 20th, has been received by the Fame, arrived at Norfolk, which states that our affairs with the French government had at that time assumed a more favorable aspect. Gen. Armstrong had ordered the John Adams to repair to England, to receive Mr. Pinckney's dispatches, and to return to France, for lieut. Fenwick, who would be charged with the French dispatches. (Nat. Intell.)

the name of MAURAT AIN, lying in the state of Virginia, immediately on the post road, about 9 miles from Alexandria. This farm contains upwards of seven hundred acres the soil is well adapted for wheat, corn or tobacco—there are on the farm two houses, one of which is a commodious dwelling with a good kitchen, and the other is a two story building 32 feet square, shingled and weather boarded but not finished inside, it is situated immediately on the post road and is an excellent stand for a tavern. Mr. Edgar McCarty, of Cedar Grove, who resides near this property, will on application show it to any person desirous of purchasing.

known by the name of McCarty's Island, in the Potomac river, about 20 miles above quality to any land in the western country, and is surpassed by none for valuable timber for house and ship-building, only about 30 acres are cleared. A further description is deemed unnecessary as it is presumed that any person wanting to purchase will view it.

Mr. James Middleton, who lives near this island, will show it on application. For the above described lands a great bargain will be sold on application to the subscriber residing in George Town.

Pinkerton's Collection of Voy- ages and Travels,

Forming a complete History of the Origin and Progress of Discovery by Sea and Land, from the most authentic Sources.

THE first number of this valuable Work is just come to hand and is ready for inspection at the store of the subscriber, in King-street, and with Mr. Triplett, at the coffee-house.

Fully aware of the impositions that have been practised upon the public by strangers soliciting subscriptions from distant places; the Editors invite their examination of a Work perhaps the most useful, entertaining as well as extensive in its kind that has ever been undertaken in any country. And they flatter themselves that the American will by no means shrink from a comparison with the London edition, tho' offered at six dollars per Vol. less.

This number may be considered as a fair specimen of the execution of the work, and will be left a short time for examination, before the 2d number is put to press. After this the subscription will be raised to $2 25 each number; and but a few more copies printed than are sufficient to supply the subscribers, that the early patrons of this valuable Work may have a decided advantage—subsequent applications may therefore come too late.

It is also the intention of the Editor to annex to the last number a complete list of names of the subscribers as the patrons and encouragers of useful knowledge, the arts and literature of the United States.

Subscriptions are received by the subscriber.

ORIGINAL FAMILY MEDICINES,

Prepared by RICHARD LEE & SON,

Have been in high estimation and general use throughout the United States, for upwards of ten years. And it is no inconsiderable evidence of their utility, that during the above period, numerous imitations of every article, the productions of ignorance and experience, urged by envy and pecuniary have been intruded on the public, seen for a day, and then perished. Others now succeed them, which in like manner are fast descending to the tomb of the Capulets; while our remedies become more generally used, and acquire a daily accession of deserved celebrity.

Lee's Worm-destroying Lozenges.

This medicine is superior to any verified to the public, being innocent and mild certain and efficacious in its operations—Should no worms exist in the body, it will without pain or griping, cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders.

Lee's Elixer.

A certain remedy for colds, coughs, eath-mas, and particularly the whooping cough, so destructive to children.

Lee's Essence of Mustard,

So well known for the cure of rheumatisms, gout, palsy, sprains, &c. &c.

Lee's Grand Restorative,

Proved by long experience to be unequalled in the cure of nervous disorders, consumptions, lowness of spirits, inward weakness, &c.

Lee's Anti-Bilious Pills,

For the prevention and cure of bilious and malignant fevers.

Lee's Sovereign Ointment for the Itch,

Which is warranted an infallible remedy at one application.

Infalible Ague & Fever Drops,

For the cure of agues, remittent, and intermittent fevers.

Lee's Genuine Persian Lotion,

Celebrated for the cure of ring worms tetter, &c.

Lee's Genuine Eye Water.

An effectual remedy for all diseases of the eyes.

Tooth-ache Drops.

Which give immediate relief.

Lee's Damask Lip Salve.

Restorative Powder for the Teeth and Gums.

The Anodyne Elixir,

For the cure of every kind of head-ache.

The Indian Vegetable Specific,

For the cure of venereal complaints.

Those medicines having come into general use, they are frequently purchased not only by Druggists, but by country store keepers to sell again; in order that the purchasers may be confident they have the original genuine medicines; wherever they purchase they have but to observe, that every article of medicine has on the outward wrapper the signature of the proprietors.
